Dear Victoria:

I'm sure that you're aware of the letter I sent you yesterday, October 25, 2006, regarding the current television advertisement that is being run by your campaign. In that letter, I alerted you that the use of footage from official proceedings of the House of Representatives is forbidden in political ads. I was disappointed to see that you decided to flout the rules under which you are so desperate to serve.

I have not personally heard from you or your campaign regarding this matter. I would like to give you the opportunity to withdraw the advertisement until it conforms to the rules surrounding political advertisements before I take this matter to the next level and file a complaint with the Speaker of the House.

I am saddened by these recent developments and your unwillingness to make this campaign about issues rather than personal attacks, name calling, and blatant cheap shots.

I await your action. Please keep in mind that it is a dangerous thing when political figures decide for themselves which rules and laws they will honor. After all, democracy hinges on all of us living under the same set of rules.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Jean Schmidt
